Granted, beauty is subjective. So is taste. But some things transcend subjectivity and style, and simply take our breath away, like these ten hotels. While a few grand dames on the list have stunned since their debut, a few newcomers have burst on the scene to rival the city's beautiful hotel standbys. But no matter your definition of beauty and whether your tastes skew timeless or modern, these are ten gorgeous hotels.

New York Edition

Ian Schrager's latest "edition" to the hotel scene is an ode to the era of Gilded Age mansions and 20th century private clubs, with residential environs to match. Housed in the landmark clock tower building overlooking Madison Square Park, the hotel features 273 stylish and residential guest rooms with custom-built platform beds and oversized windows that highlight city vistas. The aptly named Clocktower restaurant serves contemporary British cuisine in three separate dining rooms, and the even more aptly named Gold Bar stuns with mahogany walls, herringbone floors, hundreds of gold-frame photographs and its pièce-de-résistance — a horseshoe-shaped 24-karat gold leaf bar. 5 Madison Avenue, from $613, editionhotels.com/new-york
