DAHLIA DRESZER SOLO EXHIBITION

Currently on view | Miami Beach Botanical Garden

Dahlia Dreszer's newest solo exhibition at the Miami Beach Botanical Garden features photographic, floral still lifes that explore the fragile intersection of memory, cultural tradition, and grief. In an age of accelerating technological change, Dreszer looks at how materiality and technology shape the way memories are formed, stored, and retold. The result is a relatable meditation on the human impulse to hold onto what time inevitably takes away. The work questions what it means to preserve personal memory, cultural heritage, and identity across time, technology, and displacement. The exhibition emphasizes that flowers are not decorative objects but sentimental memorabilia.

As day turns to night, the experience unfolds even further with drone shows, fireworks, 3D projection mapping, and live music performances throughout the weekend.
